We Hear Countless Success Stories Every Day, So We Thought We'd Share

When an on-the-job injury occurs, the initial response can be critical in aiding an employee in making the right decisions about what type of care they need. Employees need to trust that their employer will support them with the resources needed to make the best choices. Genex ClinicalCare24 arms the employee and the employer with a resource that can assess the situation and help determine the appropriate course of action. Whether it be self-care or an urgent care, having a Registered Nurse (RN) who is armed with clinical knowledge specific to workplace injuries available 24 hours a day, seven days a week to assist with triage can make all the difference when something unexpected occurs.

National Electronics Distribution Center

A leading provider of technology products, services and solutions with multiple distribution locations across the country wanted to reduce their OSHA recordable injuries, overall claim volume, and implement a safer work environment. Without a knowledgeable clinical resource onsite to assist with injury triage, the employer's level of injury and illness appeared higher due to unnecessarily escalated work-related injuries. With ClinicalCare24 the employer was able to make a nurse available by phone for all their distribution centers.
