

Preferred Provider Organization (PPO) Network

Control costs with Genex PPO network strategy

Network selection is a key component of any managed care program. That's why Genex partners with the most comprehensive preferred provider networks — national, regional, and local — in the country.

This wide choice allows the client with multiple locations to select multiple networks based upon the client's individual requirements. Thus, we can help you custom-design a PPO network strategy that keeps your managed care program current while controlling costs. We call this our "Best of States" approach, and only Genex offers it.
