Workers compensation.com: WC Experts Opine on Latest Guidance on ADA and COVID-19 Long Haulers

July 26, 2021

1 MIN READ

People suffering with lingering symptoms after having COVID-19 may be covered under the Americans with Disabilities Act. On the 31st anniversary of the signing of the landmark legislation, President Biden announced that some so-called "long haulers" can be protected under the ADA "if the condition or any of its symptoms is a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities.
